Guidance in Choosing a College

Monday on First Edition, College Counselor Toby Waldorf joined us to talk about choosing a college.

This fall more than 1.5 million kids will apply to colleges. The process of choosing a college or university is unquestionably one of the most important decisions a high school student and his/her family faces, as this single decision can significantly impact the course of the student's future. Students and parents have a multitude of sources of information on colleges and universities, from friends and peers, to books, guidance counselors, and college visits – and all of these sources can yield confusing, contradictory, biased or even just plain incorrect information. In response to the difficulties many people face in this process, college counselor Toby Waldorf co-founded Destination-U, an online college-related site. Destination U individually matches a college bound student to the colleges at which he or she is most likely to thrive based on that student's individual needs, preferences, attitudes and behaviors.
